Summary

I am a software developer who has gained several knowledge and experience in recent times. I have been working for more than one year now as a software developer with experience and skills in several web technologies that help create powerful, user-friendly websites. In the past, I have amassed a plethora of skills in various web technologies such as HTML5, CSS, Bootstrap and Tailwind, JavaScript, PHP, ReactJS, and many more. I have also successfully developed the application of a gas ordering system by putting the aforementioned skills into use. I have collaborated with others to work on projects relating to web and app development which makes me not only target-driven but also a team player.
